Alteration in the complex environment of the elderly and resultant physiological changes contribute to a greater frequency of drug-induced delirium in this population. Increased sensitivity to the sedative, anticholinergic, antiserotonergic and antinociceptive effects of these drugs has been postulated. As the number of drugs with potential for producing delirium continues to increase, drug therapy for the elderly should be carefully considered in relation to the treatment of delirium in this age group. The prevention of delirium in the elderly should be a primary goal of all physicians.Hearing all about the new SMG pistols in general, I was very curious and bought one to test. I went through the pain of cleaning it up, and yesterday, my first shooting with it went extremely well. So, first of all, the new all metal trigger system is pretty nice and is very accurate. The small amount of stress the gun will put on the sear is minimal, and the sear hits the hammer and the hammer falls to the base of the firing pin. The trigger pull is impressive, being able to shoot on 3/4 the pull of the factory trigger is a great accomplishment. The blow back design is a nice combination of fairly small ports, medium sized ports, and a giant gas cylinder that slowly does its job and causes the cylinder to explode and push the bullet forward. The blow back design means that when you pull the trigger, the barrel has to travel back about a foot and a half to get the gas out and expand the cylinder to fire the bullet. This setup creates a consistent high velocity shot
